

Patricia Hill Chief Learning Officer

---

Patricia Hill has served the past six years as the Chief Learning Officer for NISC - National Information Solutions Cooperative. NISC is a $115M software technology firm with 900 employees located in Missouri, North Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin. More than 650 Member cooperatives - owners of NISC and users its software suite - are located throughout the 50 United States and Canada.

Hired as a change agent for the company, Patricia has successfully launched and manages a corporate learning center; mentors eight talented learning professionals; created a software certification curriculum for NISC's proprietary products; initiated and taught a Situational Leadership II project for 140 supervisors companywide; launched the company's learning management system which currently hosts 100 virtual events for an external audience and more than 400 for employees; facilitates an annual Leadership Retreat; launched the company's annual Employee Learning quarter, and manages the company's annual conference for 2000 attendees.

Previously, Patricia has held positions in higher education administration and fundraising, Executive VP for a professional association, and President of her own communications consulting firm. She currently lives in St. Louis, Missouri.